The Process

If you are interested in a formal quote then call to make an appointment. They normally last around 30 minutes, and it helps if you can bring fabric samples, colour swatches and / or pictures of things that you like – but not essential. We then email you through a quote and if you would like to lock us in for your day, we require a 25% deposit. Final payment is due one month before your wedding and this is when we formalise all the details and make any changes.

About BEST BUDS Floral Design

We are the preferred wedding flower supplier for a number of key venues in the CBD and create our floral designs out of our two shops – one in the city and one in Surry Hills. We are able to do weddings outside of Sydney and have access to refrigerated trucks if required. On a hot day we will wetpack your flowers so that they remain fresh until you leave for your ceremony.

We can provide numerous references and have many pictures to peruse in store.

Hints and Tips

- Try to work with what is in season to make sure you keep within budget and that your flowers will be freshest on the day.
- Lock in your florist at least 3 – 6 months before your wedding to make sure of availability.
- Consider table centres in disposable containers (perhaps boxes wrapped in bark) so that guests can take them at the end of the night. Or else ask about purchasing the containers.
- Check with your church if they will allow you to remove your altar arrangements – placing them at the reception centre ensures you get more value for your money.
- Try not to include too many colours (unless that is the look you are after!) Sometimes subtlety works best – you want to try and complement your theme, not overpower it
- Ask about how certain flowers last on hot days. Be sure your florist prepared your flowers to maximise their longevity e.g. wetpacking lilies and wiring tulips.
- If having your bridesmaids dresses made, try to keep some of the fabric offcuts so that we can wrap the stems to match exactly.
- Arrange to have your flowers delivered to you around 2 hours before you leave – that way they last longer, and your photographer has something to do if you are running behind schedule!
- Treat your flowers with care on the day. They are living, breathing things which will bruise or discolour if they get bumped or roughly handled.
- Investigate freeze drying your bouquet to keep it as a memento from the day. We can arrange this for you.
- Don't always base your decisions purely on price. Choosing suppliers you can trust means you will be able to relax more on the day and enjoy it!
